Category: Document

Provenance:

Person:

Date:

10/ Southwest Iowa and several camps and towns in eastern Nebraska. And they staged wagon trains of pioneers into the Salt Lake Valley as fast as they could raise supplies and equipment for the 1000-mile journey. Unlike the great rush of men to California about that same time, this was a family movement, including the very young and the very old. And the Mormons were going to a desert valley to establish agricultural communities, so they had to take much with them in order to survive the first months of building, planting and waiting for their first harvest.
